- If your exhibit exceeds the size of the booth, please contact the Secretariat.
- In accordance with the Fire Services Law, the height of exhibits must be exactly 2.1m.
- If you plan to create a poster, please make sure that it does not extend beyond the walls of the booth.

- Please make your own arrangements for transporting PCs, demo equipment, and catalogs used in your presentation.
- Materials, etc. can be sent by courier service. We will inform you of the designated date and address once it's been decided.

Thank you for your understanding. (When you're preparing, please switch the display manually)
- The maximum resolution is Full HD, and it is fitted with a DisplayPort cable for connecting. If you need another form of connection, please bring your own connecting converter.

Safety

- We ask that you prioritize the safety of visitors and consider it part of your responsibility. In particular, please consider beforehand the possibility of fingers being caught in moving parts, cutting by sharp edges, and fire due to overheating, and take measures such as placing warning signs or tape in areas where accidents may be anticipated.
- For exhibits that will be directly touched by visitors, please do not allow them to touch them when staff members are not present.
- If the management committee determines that safety cannot be ensured, the exhibition may be cancelled.

Video

- Videos can be uploaded from the session information management site (cedecman) during the call for proposals and after acceptance decisions have been made.
- They may be used for screening in public spaces and for online streaming.
- If your video is used, it may be cut and edited to fit the screening time, and subtitles may be added to explain the content.
- Please consider using video for explanations of items that are difficult to set up in the venue or operate in a stable manner due to their size.

Sound

- Please be mindful of the volume to avoid disturbing those around you.
- If you expect to cause loud noise, we'll consider the location if you let us know in advance.
